

Abstract of the Disclosure

Methods of recovering desired living cells contained in a tissue sample are based on separation based on fluorescence of a fluorescent protein produced by the desired cells.